"Gifting is a significant source of income for many of our kitchenware exhibitors, and we've seen a real emphasis on this over the past year," said from almost Abempp now won't look out of place in a boutique or design shop and is doing brilliantly in all sorts of retailers," says Charnier. Utensil retailers, which deliver a range of novelties, including kitchen textiles, has an entire gift packaging to encourage impulse purchases," says I adding that "a beautifully packaged tea towel is, relatively speaking for a dinner gift or very easy to send as by post. At such a price many impulse purchases.

GIFT packaging helping the stationery sector," Martin at Denby points out. Denby's James Martin Collection, with its "unique designed premium pack" in a range launched to target the gift market, and has discovered that reflected back from its tableware ranges, in ceramics, mug and cup sets, and jugs, when packaging attractiveness, see huge success the cookshop retail area."

With a product sells as a gift - licensed ranges have been increasingly popular with consumers, but how a product is packaged also plays a significant part, as well as the attractiveness of the product itself.

"Smaller, less expensive items see a larger volume of sales," Denby's Martin adds.
